FREE RIDE TO JAMESTOWN OR NEW YORK CITY

VACATION TIME IS HERE. SEGER BRO'S, OF NEW YORK MAKE THIS STARTLING OFFER.

Emporium Business Men Hustlers in New York.

We will give to every cash purchaser of our celebrated Becker Bro's piano a free trip to New York City and return, including board for five days outing; or we will give a free trip and return to Jamestown Exposition including five days board at one of the principal hotels. This we can safely say is the greatest offer ever made in any mercantile business. You secure not only a vacation for yourself but you get one of the finest toned instruments that it is possible to buy at any price, and this at the same cash figure we sell all the year around. Our reason for making this extraordinary offer is simply this: The weather has been very unreasonable, hundreds of orders that the manufacturers received in the winter and and early spring having been cancelled. They, the manufacturers, are in consequence over stocked and must dispose of them at once and at a great loss. We assure you three monthe from now the piano cannot be sold at this figure. We sell direct from the actory and should you decide to visit New York, we will take pleasure in showing you through this immense concern and give you an opportunity of seeing this piano, as it is made, step by step, from the first rough board to its finished state. Catalogs, containing all the different styles and cuts of the Becker Bro's pianos will be gladly mailed to you upon application. Our price for the piano, with either of above propositions included, is $275.00 cash for the large size Becker Piano and $250.00 cash for the small size. This is a genuine offer and no fake, holds good until Sept. 1st. Our motto is: Lead and let others follow; quick sales and small profits. Cut this out and communicate with us at once for further particulars.

Respectfully,
SEGER BRO'S,

State Educational Association.

The Fifty-first sessionai of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association will be held at Greensburg, Westmoreland county, July 2, 3 and 4, 1907. Greensburg is one of the most attractive and most progressive towns in Pennsylvania. It is thirty-one miles east of Pittsburg on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Special efforts have been made to present a program of great worth. The State Teachers' Association is of the highest professional value to teachers. Many school measures found upon our statute books are traceable to the influence of this organization. Every teacher in the state should be a member of this organization. All members will receive a bound volume of the proceedings. The enrollment fee, which is $1.00, may be sent to Prof. David S. Keck, treasurer, Kutztown, Pa.

The National Educational Association will meet in Los Angeles, California, July 8-12, 1907. Pennsylvania has been honored in the choice of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer as president of this Association. Our state should send a large enrollment to this convention.

Sorely Afflicted.

Geo. Kenworthy, who was injured in the Cameron mines some weeks ago, thereby losing the sight of his right eye, after every effort had been made by the Wills Eye Hospital at Philadelphia to save it, was a social caller at PRESS office on Monday. Mr. Kenworthy came to Cameron mines in 1892 aud has always been a hard worker, ever ready to assist and aid his fellows in distress. We hope he may regain his health and will not despair, although he is placed continually under heavy expense. He should be aided and not compel him to solicit assistance. The PRESS will gladly head a fund by subscribing $5.00. Who will follow?

Sheeter's Nerve and Bone Linament.

An immediate remedy for Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diphtheria, and Pneumonia. Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30th, 1906 Cerial No. 4815. St. Marys was easy picking for the home team last Saturday. Although St. Marys had an aggregation composed of practically all the left handed "hard hitters" in Elk county they were able to get but four hits off Gilbert, whose pitching and all round work was the feature of the game. With Gilbert and Hemphill on the pitching staff, and Eschbaugh and Liston behind the slab, Emporium has as strong batteries as can be found in the amateur ranks. Manager Falk in procuring Gilbert has greatly strengthened the home team and it is expected the boys will take a brace and give us the real article. The St. Marys boys played a very loose fielding game and the locals profited by their errors, while on the other hand the errors Emporium made were not costly.

Ridgway plays here next Saturday be sure you see the game. The score:

Three Hundred Years Ago.

The Jamestown Ter-centenary is meant to recall to us something of the beginnings of our great and mighty nation. This commemoration fixes attention neither upon the past alone nor upon the present alone, but upon the past as related to the present and the present as related to the past. In the past we see the germ and foundation of the present, and in the present we see the fulfilment and vindication of the past.

In 1607 we see the beginning of religious, as well as of commercial and industrial life, in America. The following extract from Captain John Smith's "True Relation and Generall Historie" is of timely interest, inasmuch as the first service of the Holy Communion was held at Jamestown on the Third Sunday after Trinity, June 21, 1607.

We did hang an awning (which is an old saile) to three or four trees to shaden us from the sunne, our walls were rales of wood, our seats unhewed trees till we cut planks; our pulpit a bar of wood nailed to two neighboring trees. This was our church till wee built a homely thing like a barne, set upon crotchets, covered with rafts, sedge and earth, so was also the walls; the best of our houses were of the like curiousity; but for the most part farre much worse workmanship, that could neither well defend from wind nor raine. We had daily common prayer morning and evening, every Sunday two sermons, and every three months the Holy Communion, till our minister [the Rev. Robert Hunt] died; but our prayers daily, with a homily on Sundaies, we continued two or three years after, till more preachers came."

A Church Event.

NORTHERN CONVOCATION MEETING AT CHRIST CHURCH PARISH HOUSE.

Clergymen and laymen of the northern convocation of the diocese of Pittsburg met for conference at Christ church parish house yesterday afternoon. There were present: The Rt, Rev. Cortlandt Whitehead, D. D., Bishop of Pittsburg; the Rev. Drs. Bento n of Foxburg, and Conant, of Waterford, the Rev. Messrs. Edwards, of Meadville; Gibson, of Port Allegany ; Hills, or Oil City; Hunter, of St. Mary's; Izon, of Greenville; John, of Clearfield; Morgan, of Titusville; Robertson, of Emporium and Van Dyke, of Kane, and 24 laymen, representing the parishes in Clearfield, Erie, Greensville, Kane, Meadville and Oil City.

The guests, together with the rector and representative laymen of Christ church, were sumptuously entertained at luncheon in the assembly hall of the parish house by ladies of the parish, under the leadership of Mrs. Frederick S. Bates. The American flag was the chief table decoration, and flags adorned the walls. The bishop made graceful acknowledgment of the ladies hospitality.

After devotions the bishop stated the action of the recent diocesan convention, which authorized the appointment of an archdeacon for work in the northern convocation exclusively. Tho following executive committee was thereupon elected: The Rev. Messrs. Algner, of Franklin; Hills, of Oil City, and McGann, of Erie; and Messrs. Brockway, of Warren; Dick, of Meadville; Howard, of Emporium, and Ohl, of New Castle. This community was authorized to receive all suggestions regarding the new archdeacon, and to present a nominee to the bishop for appointment. To reorganize the convocation as a missionary body, the following were appointed a committee on by-laws: The Rev. Messrs. Robertson, of Emporium; Morgan, of Titusville, and Jones, of Warren; and Messrs Mullins, of Franklin, and Earp, of Oil City. The bishop announced that, after such reorganization, he would place the nominations of missionaries and the apportionment, of stipends in the hands of convocation. Additional subscriptions increased the fund for the new archdeacon's work to $2,860. It was proposed that the convocation receive quarterly reports from the archdeacon and the several missionaries.

With a large map of the diocese before him, the bishop then spoke of the missionary work in detail, and interesting additions were made by Mr. Turner W. Shacklett, of Erie, the treasurer for diocesan missions. A general discussion followed, in which many clergymen and laymen took part. Rev. John Dows Hills made an earnest plea for the more extended work of lay-readers in small places, instancing the great work done by the laymen's league of Pittsburg, and the like work done in McKeesport and Oil City, with laymen caring for services in outlying towns under clergymen's direction.

The executive committee, to which was entrusted the nomination of an archdeacon; is to meet at once, and it is expected to have the man in the field in the early autumn.

The meeting was a great success socially, as well in its work, and the members of Christ church were lavish in their hospitality to the visitors.—Oil City Derrick, May 31.

Died at Hospital.

Robt. Armstrong, aged about 60, who has resided at Beechwood for many years, where he owned a farm, died in Lock Haven Hospital on Tuesday. Undertaker LaBar's assistant, C. W. Rishell, went to Lock Haven early yesterday morning and brought the remains to Emporium. Mr. Armstrong, who has been working in Hicks Run, was taken down with pneumonia and taken to the hospital. We are unable to gather any additional information, but we understand the funeral will be held at Truman school house to-day at three o'clock. We knew deceased very well and valued his friendship very highly We hope to secure an obituary for next issue.

Veto.

Governor Stuart on Monday vetoed the bill pensioning soldiers of the civil war who served in Pennsylvania regiments and are now resident of the state. The chief reasons for vetoing the bill are that it is so crude in form and bears evidence of having been passed without mature deliberation and were it to become a law it would be necessary to reduce the appropriations to the state's public and private charities.

Shippen School Board.

At the organization of the Shippen school board on Wednesday, the following officers were elected: Fred Zimmer, President; Gilman Leavitt, Sec'y; H. J. Newton, Treasurer.

Missionary Thank Offering.

Special envelopes for the Missionary Thank Offering will be distributed among the men of Emmanuel Parish this week, to be returned in the offering next Sunday, June 16th. This offering is for a fund which is being raised throughout the Episcopal Church in the United States in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the Church in Jamestown, Va. The fund will be used for permanent improvements in the domestic and foreign mission fields. Early service of Holy Communion at eight o'clock.

New York Life Makes Prompt Settlement.

On Wednesday, June 12th The New York Life Insurance Company, through Mr. Don M. Larrabee its manager for this district, paid to Mrs Elizabeth P. Howard, Executrix of George A. Howard's estate, a check for ten thousand dollars. The same was paid in settlement of a policy for that amount carried by the late George A. Howard, in the above company. As an illustration of the prompt manner in which the New York Life meets it's obligations the above settlement was made within four days after the certificates were filed with the company.

The Church Kindergarten.

The second annual term of the summer Church Kindergarten opened on Monday morning in Emmanuel Parish House. Twenty-eight children have been in attendance this week. The work is under the experienced direction of Miss Nina Bryan. This is not an ordinary kindergarten, but one which has for its distinctive aim the imparting of religious instruction through the medium of Bible stories, hymns, etc. Kindergarten methods and many of the usual kindergarten exercises are employed. It is substantially a modern progressive primary Sunday school, with this difference and advantage, that it is held on five days of the week instead of one. The term will last six weeks.

The Barclay-Shoemaker Nuptials.

SINNAMAHONING, PA., June 12.—At the home of Hon. and Mrs. George B Barclay, at 11 o'clock this morning, occurred the marriage of their youngest daugher Beatrice, to Henry Wharton Shoemaker, of New York city.

On account of the recent death of Mr. Shoemaker's brother, the ceremony was performed in the presence of only the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The marriage service was performed in the parlors of the Barclay home before a huge bank of palms and American Beauty roses. The Rt. Rev. J. H Darlington, bishop of Harrisburg, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. R. T. Noble, pastor of the M. E. church of Newberry, Pa., and formerly of Sinnamahoning, and Rev. C. E. Dickson, of the Sinnamahoning Methodist church.

At 11 o'clock the bride, attended by her sister, Miss Lillian Barclay, and leaning on the arm of her father, proceeded to the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. rendered by the Stopper and Fisk orchestra of Williamsport.

In the drawing room they were met by the groom and the ceremony of the Episcopal church was used in uniting them.

The bride looked particularly beautiful in an exquisite gown of white embroidered chiffon, made empire. She wore a white tulle veil and in her hair orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley, and her only ornament being a beautiful diamond necklace, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was attired in a dress of white lace over pink and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

The Barclay residence was prettily decorated in American Beauty roses, palms and native flowers. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served by Caterer A. F. Laedlain, of Williamsport. After receiving the congratulations of their friends the newly married couple departed for Eaglesmere, where they will spend a couple of weeks, after which they will make an extensive automobile tour, which will include a visit to the Jamestown exposition After the honeymoon they have planned to spend the remainder of the summer at their summer home at Covent, N. J. Next winter they expect to occupy a handsome new residence in New York city.

Miss Barclay is a young lady of unusual beauty and talents. She recently closed her school year at Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Gardner's academy in New York city previous to which she attended the National Park seminary, Washington, D. C.

Among the presents were $1,000 in gold from the bride's uncle Congressman Barclay.

Among the guests from out of town were Mr and Mrs. Henry Shoemaker, New York city; Mrs. Cordelia Quiggle. Mr. and Mrs. James Quiggle, Mr. Edmund Quiggle, McElhattan, Pa.; Mr and Mrs. Percy Lang, Waverly, N. Y.; Miss Holloway, Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. Watson Barclay, Laquin, Pa ; Mr. and Mrs. G. WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, June 8th, 1907.

The last days of the President before leaving for his summer vacation at Oyster Bay are being spent in arranging for the trust prosecutions that it is confidently believed will be undertaken by the Department of Justice. The evening of the last cabinet day in Washington was the occasion of a notable gathering of "trust busters" at the White House. There were most of the members of the cabinet, Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission, representatives of the Department of Justice, and some of the special attorneys of the government engaged in the corporation investigations. The object of the gathering was to settle on the policy of the administration as to prosecutions so as to leave the President as free as possible from discussions of this sort during the summer.

The government has gathered a mass of information on which it may act, but there is more in the question than the simple one of whether or not a conviction can be secured in any particular case. There is the wider one of policy. The country has been riding on a wave of prosperity, they have been immense crops and great business expansion. The repeated revelations of corruption in financial life and the threat that the law would be enforced and a number of captains of industry put in jail, has stirred up the corporations so that they are threatening to "shut off the heat" as it were, by suspending railroad improvements, closing down factories, and laying off men. Just with these moves there comes the prospect of a bad crop year. Repeated raids in the stock market have driven securiities down to a low point and while the shrinkage in paper values has not effected the real values of tangible assets, it has made money tigher for capital is notoriously timid, and now should there come a determined raid from the White House against the pirate captains of industry, values would go tumbling again and everything would be just right for the financial panic that pessimists have so long said was over due.

It is this ticklish state of affairs on the brink of an election that is making the administration hesitate as to the wisest course to take. There is no question that the government could put a number of eminent financiers in jail if it were determined to do so. There is little question too that such drastic action would be followed by profound industrial depression, and then the money world would be able to chuckle and say, "Now see what you've done." Therefore it is likely that the Department of Justice will be cautioned to move very carefully in its prosecutions and an attempt will be made to punish the wrongdoers without hurting some of the other combinations that have been equally illegal but perhaps not so harmful as the chief offenders.

The President has always taken a great interest in rifle shooting, and it is perhaps only natural that he has become a life member of the National Rifle Association. The aim of this Association is to promote practice with the service rifle among civilians who do not want to spare the time to go into the National Guard. Under rules recently issued by the War Department, any twenty men can form a rifle club and buy service rifles and ammunition from the government and be given the privilege of the nearest government or national guard rifle range, that is of course, if they have not a range of their own. The President has been conferring with Gen. Drain, the president of the association, and he hopes to get authority from the coming congress to issue rifles of this sort free of charge to any rifle clubs affiliated with the National Association. It is believed in this way that the average of markmanship among civilians can be greatly raised and if the time ever comes when we are confronted with another war, the volunteers will be familiar with the use of the service rifle before they are enlisted.

The G. A. R.

By Rev. S. A. Brace.

In April eighteen sixty-one.
Fort Sumpter heard the rebel gun;
And from that cannon's blazing mouth,
Secession thundered through the south.
It echoed back from Tennessee;
It shook the land of liberty.

And, in the old dominion state,
Rank traitors did confederate,
Secession's ordinance they drew;
They pierced the Union's vitals through.
They trampled on our sacred stars;
They hoisted up the rebel bars.

Disgusted with the mad affray,
Our eagle screamed and soared away,
And over North and East and West,
He circled wide nor sought for rest,
Until he saw the G. A. R.,
Equipped and marching on to war.

The awful cloud of civil war,
Burst o'r our land; we felt its jar,
As tidings came from many a plain,
Strewn with the many thousands slain,
Such tidings came from Malvern Hill,
And from the bloody Chancellorsville.

But Lee's great army met stern fate,
Up in the rocked ribbed Keystone state.
For never did the burning sun,
From his high place in heaven, look down,
Upon a fiercer field of strife,
Or greater loss in human life.

Four million slaves the war made free,
And Lincoln sighed their liberty,
Four million chains of bondage fell,
Because of Union shot and shell,
While Sherman marched from Tennessee,
Clear down through Georgie to the sea.

And Grant, with his unflinching will,
And dashing dauntless little Phil,
And Farragut with man of war,
Hancock and Mead and countless more—
Each served his county in the strife,
And helped to save the country's life.

From lakes to gulf we look to-day;
The blue is mingled with the gray;
The Johnny clasps the Yankee's hand;
Our Flag is loved o'r all the ladd,
Shoulder to shoulder now we see
A Dewey and a Fitzhugh Lee.

Oh! how the fleeting years have sped,
The leaders of that war are dead,
Lincoln and Davis, Grant and Lee,
Have passed into eternity.
Comrades are falling one by one;
The last one's work will soon be done.

God bless the few who still remain!
Nor will we e'er forget the slain,
The noble boys who fought and fell,
Beneath the flag they loved so well,
Peace to the Veterans of the war;
God's blessing on the G. A. R.

The Latest Panacea.

We Americans have a genius for the invention of cure-alls, and for faith in them after they are invented. Some one has now contrived—on paper—the Order of Nebuchadnezzarites. The method of the order is not to be, as one might expect, a diet of grass, but a change from the upright position to one on all fours. Members of the society must agree to eat, drink, walk and run on their hands and knees. They are assured by the founder of the order that they will speedily banish all the ills to which human flesh is heir. Witness the vigorous health enjoyed by the dog, the ox, the horse and the necessary pig—their freedom from dyspepsia, neuritis, rheumatism and consumption. Whether they be immune to measles, chicken-pox and mumps has not yet been announced. It is not disclosed whether this order is the product of the lively imagination of a newspaper reporter or a serious scheme of a sincere reformer who is unable to master more than one idea. The very doubt on this point results from the fact that even such a society might find adherents. An oriental legend relates that when woman first discovered man he was living on all fours. She coaxed him to his feet, and induced him to walk upright. Can it be that the twentieth century will undo the work of the primitive woman? Surely, remarks Youth's Companion, the adherents of the new cult must all be men; for fashion has made no provision for women's clothes in the new attitude. "Creepers" designed for the purpose cannot yet be obtained, and the mushroom hats would not adapt themselves to a poise on the back of the neck. Thus fashion may be stronger than fad, and weary man may be forced to stand up again to get within speaking distance of woman.

President Roosevelt may find support for his theory that under certain conditions war may be more honorable than peace and better for mankind in the utterances of Dr. Emil Reich, the Hungarian historian and philosopher, now lecturing in London. In a letter to a New York paper Dr. Reich says he does not believe in peace congresses, and adds: "I believe, after 35 years of study of the past and observation of the present, that conflict made us, conflict keeps us going, and without conflict the great question of nations can never be solved. Shakespeares are made by the destruction of armadas, and not by universities, lecture rooms and public libraries. The father of Sophocles was Salamis. General disarmament means stagnation and degeneration." When Mr. Carnegie hears this he will be greatly displeased.

Waste of Scientific Thought.

Word comes from Paris that a scientist over there has an invention that will make a detailed record of a man's thoughts. This is interesting, but it will never be popular, declares Cleveland Plain Dealer. Few men think thoughts that they would care to preserve, more especially if taken unawares by a prowler with a snapshot think recorder. Of course, it might be possible to train the mind to sit for a mental picture, as it were, but there are few men who could look pleasant while doing it. No man would feel safe as long as he thought it was in the neighborhood. No, the Frenchman would do humanity a much greater and far more satisfying service by perfecting a new can opener or an original cough cure.

Sometimes Americans wonder that Australia, a country with less than 4,000,000 inhabitants, should turn out so many crack athletes, especially pugilists. It's a country where the climate and the habit of the people combine to favor outdoor life, and sport is taken at least as seriously as business.—Cleveland Leader.

TAFT'S HIGH HOPES

PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTS OF THE OHIO MAN.

He Is Greatly Admired as Citizen's Jurist and Statesman, But Leading Protectionists Question Whether He Is Sufficiently Sound in Their Economic Faith.

Events of an unusual character have conspired to project into the arena of public discussion the aspirations of Hon. William H. Taft for nomination as the Republican candidate for president of the United States. Fully 14 months prior to the assembling of the national convention Mr. Taft comes out in the open as a seeker after this great distinction. With almost equal openness the declaration is made that he is "the administration candidate."

In a recent issue of the Morning Call of Paterson appears a significant letter from one of the foremost citizens of New Jersey, Col. William Barbour, chairman of the executive committee of the American Protective Tariff League, as follows:

"New York, April 29, 1907.—To the Editor of the Call: In last Saturday's Call, under the heading, 'Taft Boom in the State,' you printed an article that would lead the reader to suppose that Secretary Taft was the choice of the Republican party in New Jersey to succeed President Roosevelt.

"Having had the privilege of representing the Sixth district at so many national conventions, may I say for myself, and on behalf of the many friends I have consulted, that when the time comes to nominate the next president, who will undoubtedly be named by the Republican party, the state of New Jersey can select a better protectionist to occupy the White House than Mr. Taft?

"If we are to continue to enjoy the prosperous times to which we are entitled so long as our country is blessed with bountiful crops, the tariff must be let alone, and Mr. Taft must speak out on this great question, as McKinley did and Vice President Fairbanks has, before visiting congressmen can hope to make many friends for Mr. Taft in the great manufacturing state of New Jersey. Very truly yours,

"WILLIAM BARBOUR."

When Col. Barbour thus early raises the question whether Judge Taft is a good enough protectionist to command the support of a great industrial state like New Jersey, it is an evidence that the time has arrived when the Taft candidacy must be taken seriously. Only a few days previous to the publication of the Barbour letter Hon. Theodore E. Burton, representative in congress from Ohio, paid a visit to New Jersey. The object of this visit was clearly revealed in a speech before a New Jersey audience appealing for New Jersey's undivided support of the Taft candidacy. As Col. Barbour has a rather larger interest in New Jersey affairs than the Ohio congressman can possibly have, and as the moment for plain speaking had plainly arrived, it seems both natural and proper that a protest should be filed against the unripe assumption that New Jersey was going to be solid for an Ohio aspirant. Col. Barbour questions whether so doubtful a protectionist as Judge Taft can command the solid support of the New Jersey delegation in next year's Republican national convention. Many protectionists have similar doubts as to the delegations from other states. It is believed that even in Ohio, Mr. Taft's own state, there are many such protectionists.

This opposition to the Taft candidacy is based upon no feeling of ill will toward the man himself. Far from it. Secretary Taft is warmly esteemed and greatly admired for his splendid abilities as jurist and statesman. He is indeed a most lovable sort of a man, albeit a strong fighter and a hard hitter. He fights in the open, and what he says you can depend on. But is he a protectionist?

Mr. Taft's strenuous advocacy of free trade in Philippine products competing with the products of American agriculture stamps him as a devoted friend of the semi-servile and half-savage Filipino, but it does not make him out a protectionist.

Mr. Taft's persistence in the matter of purchasing in foreign markets materials and supplies for the construction of the Panama canal was doubtless actuated by a desire to enforce strict economy in the canal expenditures, but it was a mistaken economy—the economy of those who urge that the right thing to do is to buy everything in the cheapest market, and that a protective tariff that gives the home market to home production and labor is morally wrong. The congress took issue with Secretary Taft's economic views and ordered him to spend American money in American mills and factories.

Early in the campaign of 1906 Mr. Taft made a speech in Maine in which he pronounced for immediate revision downward of the Dingley tariff. Doubtless he honestly believed it to be true when he said that Republican sentiment demanded tariff revision without delay. But he was mistaken in that belief; mistaken in supposing that the sentiment of the Boston brood of tariff rippers was the sentiment of the whole country. He was speaking in Maine, and Maine was then and now is practically a unit against any disturbance of the tariff. To gratuitously lug in his individual opinion that tariff revision was the pressing need of the hour was, under the circumstances, of questionable propriety. It was not what a good protectionist would have done.

That Col. Barbour in his letter to the Call has voiced the general view of protectionists we think is beyond question. His rank in the world of industry, finance and business, together with his official relation toward the American Protective Tariff league and his many years of conspicuous identification with Republican politics in New Jersey, combine to give his declaration more than ordinary significance. It is well that Secretary Taft's early and frank avowal of his presidential aspirations should be met by an equally early and frank avowal that if he is to stand well with protectionists he must declare himself a protectionist in terms of unmistakable certainty. The next nominee of the Republican party for president of the United States is going to be a protectionist. Current developments along the line of concessions and relaxations all point that way. A rebound back to sane and consistent protectionism is certain to occur, and it will be due in 1908.

WHOLE IDEA IS WRONG.

State Department Errs in Effort to Revise Tariff.

When even Democratic newspapers deprecate invasions across the border line which separates the respective powers and functions of the legislative and executive branches of our government, the situation takes on a serious aspect. The new York American has no love for the protective tariff system, but it gravely questions whether that system can or ought to be changed by an edict of the secretary of state without the concurrence of congress. In a well considered and ably written editorial in the American of May 2 the conclusion is reached that

"This method of dealing with a matter of national magnitude is wrong and dangerous. It threatens disturbance to our whole foreign trade."

This presupposes the truth of the reports that in the new dicker with Germany the spirit and intention of the Dingley tariff law have been subverted to an extent that will revolutionize customs methods of appraisement and collection. Unfortunately the supposition turns out to be correct. Our gifted state department has for the time being taken over the authority to revise the tariff schedules downward.

A THREATENING TROPICAL CYCLONE.

A Serious Question.

Referring to the proposed transfer of the tariff making prerogative from the United States congress to the export — and expert—undervaluers of Germany, the Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Association remarks:

"If the reader will compare the concessions made to Germany with the forecast made by the correspondent of the American Economist he will see that our government has shamelessly yielded to the German demand that not the true value of German exports to this country, but the value placed upon them by the exporters is to be the guide to our customs officials in assessing duties. When did congress give to the president the authority to set aside and absolutely nullify the plain provisions of our tariff schedules?"

The practical repeal of the customs administrative sections of the Dingley law is accomplished if the reported concessions are carried out. Congress has explicitly laid down certain rules for the ascertainment of the values of imports. If the state department sets aside these rules so that German exporters and not United States appraising officials may determine such values, are not the power and authority of congress in effect usurped? It is more than possible that this question will be brought up in congress.

Have Kept Things Steady.

"This is no time for stand-patters." The foregoing is one of the recent declarations of George P. Hummer, the Democratic candidate for congress in the Fifth district. This sarcastic reference to Republicans who do not favor repeal of the Dingley bill or any drastic tariff changes, has been repeated from time to time for several past years. These years have been the best this country has ever known. Had it not been for the positions held by the so-called "stand-patters" the changes and experiments proposed six or eight years ago would have been entered upon. There are few Americans who are not now glad that these demands for changes were resisted and prevented. Those who now are asking for changes in policies and conditions are those who did their best to prevent present policies and present conditions.—Houghton (Mich.) Gazette.

CONFESSION

Of a Series of Crimes Is Made in Court by

HARRY ORCHARD.

The Prosecution's Star Witness in the Haywood Trial Tells a Story that Sickens His Hearers.

Boise, Idaho.—Alfred Horsley, alias Harry Orchard, the actual assassin of Frank Steunenberg, went on the stand Wednesday as a witness against William D. Haywood and made public confession of a long chain of brutal, revolting crimes, committed, he said, at the inspiration and for the pay of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners.

An undertaking by the prosecuters for the state, that they would by later proof and connection make his testimony legitimate, opened the way like a floodgate to the whole diabolical story, and throughout the entire day Orchard went on from crime recital to crime recital, each succeeding one seemingly more revolting than the one that preceded.

Orchard confessed that as a member of the mob that wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills in the Coeur d'Alenes he lighted one of the fuses that carried fire to the giant powder explosion; confessed that he set the death trap in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek that blew out the lives of Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck; confessed that because he had not been paid for his first attempt at violence in the Vindicator mine he had been treacherous to his associates by warning the managers of the Florence & Cripple Creek railway that there was a plot to blow up their trains; confessed that he fired three charges of buckshot into the body of Detective Lyte Gregory, of Denver, killing him instantly; confessed that for days he stalked Gov. Peabody, of Colorado, about Denver, waiting a chance to kill him; confessed that he and Steve Adams set and discharged the mine under the station at Independence, Col., that instantly killed 14 men, and confessed that, failing in an attempt to poison Fred Bradley, of San Francisco, he blew him and his house up with a bomb of gelatin powder.

Orchard retained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand. His eyes were bloodshot and his face mottled in color when he came into the room to confront the man whose life he jeopardizes. He was plainly nervous. He quickly steadied himself and was soon talking in the soft, easy tones that characterize his speech. His manner was easy and his gaze steady in any direction whence a question claimed his attention.

FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.

The Secretary of an Oil Company Is Given a Sentence of Three Months in Jail.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Judge Hook, of the United States circuit court, on Wednesday sentenced H. H. Tucker, jr., indicted secretary of the Uncle Sam Oil Co., to three months in jail for contempt of court, the contempt being an affidavit filed by Tucker alleging a conspiracy between Federal Judges Pollock, McPherson and Phillips and the Standard Oil Co. to drive the Uncle Sam out of business.

Judge Hook condemned the action of Attorney Albert L. Wilson, of Kansas City, who prepared the affidavit. The judge said that the only purpose of filing the affidavit was to create interest in the papers and influence public sentiment. Hook said there was no precedent for such an affidavit, and the clerk of the court was reprimanded for placing it on file. The affidavit was stricken from the files by order of Judge Hook.

Tucker began serving his sentence last night. The bankruptcy proceedings were continued until a judge can be found to sit in the case. Judge Pollock will not preside.

The affidavit alleged that Judges Pollock, Phillips and McPherson went on a fishing trip to Tampico, Mexico, on January 26, 1906, in the private car of Gardiner Lathrop, head of the legal department of the Santa Fe railroad, and strongly intimated that during the trip a conspiracy was entered into between the judges and the Standard Oil Co. The assertion was made in the affidavit that the Standard Oil Co. and the Santa Fe railroad were controlled by the same persons. The affidavit further alleged that Judge Pollock made a statement against Tucker and the Uncle Sam out of court.

Tucker was on the stand two hours and was subjected to a grueling examination by N. H. Loomis, general attorney of the Union Pacific railroad, named by the court to conduct the examination. Tucker attempted to corroborate the charges in the affidavit, but became mixed and admitted that the affidavit was prepared on hearsay.

Perseverance.

The mistress of a large, fashionable home had just secured a new maid of Irish extraction, and who had just come from the "ould sod." Being on friendly terms with her neighbor, she told the maid that the neighbor could use anything she desired.

One day the mistress went out for all morning. On her return she found that the telephone which had been installed in the hall was gone. Calling the maid, she inquired for it.

"Plaise, mum," answered Bridget, "th' lady across th' shtrate asked me if she cud use th' tilephone, an' Oi sint it over to her; but Oi hod an awful toime to git it unshcrewed."—Judge.

Changed.

But Love, it soon appeared, was by no means the spoiled child he once had been.

"People don't make so much of him as formerly, particularly Americans," whispered Venus, with a note of resentment.

That was the mother of it. She was downright offended, in her heart, and thought it but a poor world where people made so little of anything but money, noise, trouble for their neighbors, and the like.—Life.

Didn't Get Over It.

Two young men were having a heated argument over a problem which needed a great deal of mental calculation.

"I tell you," said one, "that you are entirely wrong."

"But I am not," said the other.

"Didn't I go to school, stupid?" almost roared his opponent.

"Yes," was the calm reply; "and you came back stupid."

That ended it.

Just the Animal He Wants.

"Halloa, Hodge," said Thomson, "what's wrong with that horse?"

"I'm going to sell him," replied Hodge.

"What for?"

"Oh, well, my mother-in-law was driving him yesterday, and he ran away, and gave her such a fright that she has left the house."

"Oh, I say," cried Thomson, eagerly, "I'll buy that horse. What do you want for him?"

AROUND THE CIRCLE

HOW THE PRACTICE OF HOME TRADE HELPS EVERYBODY.

THE RESULT OF ADVERTISING

An Increased Use of Printers' Ink in the Local Paper Brought Prosperity to the Entire Community.

"You'll have to stay over Sunday, Mary, so I can have a chance for a visit with you. Can't possibly get the time through the week. Business too lively."

"Things must be getting better with you, John. Last time I was here you seemed to have lots of time to spare. Said business had gone to the dogs, or rather to the mail-order houses. What made the change?"

"Well, to tell the truth, Mary, I just wakened up one day and thought I would give them fellows in the city a little of their own medicine. I got onto the fact that they were killing me by feeding the people around here on printer's ink in the way of advertising, and while I knew most of what they said was lies the people didn't know it, and I started in to show them what I could do. Not at lying, you know, but at selling good goods as cheap as the city fellows did, and lots of times a little cheaper.

"I went to the local paper and pretty near scared the editor to death by ordering a half page of each issue for six months. Then I set about seeing what I had to sell that the people would want. I really didn't know what was in that store until I started to look it over. Some of the things had been there so long I had forgotten about them. I hauled them out and put a bargain sale price on them, told the people about them in the next week's Record, and gave the prices, and say, I just couldn't get them things wrapped up fast enough. Ever since then I've just been buying and selling, buying and selling. Seems like nothing stays in the store. Have hired two more clerks, and they're everlastingly telling me we're out of this, that or the other thing. I found that telling the people what you've got and what you are willing to sell them for pays. I've paid off that mortgage that's been hanging over us for the last ten years, and gave $100 to the new church building besides, and it's advertising that did it.

"You'll stay over Sunday, won't you? I've got to get to the store now."

"Jones ordered a new delivery wagon this morning, Jane. Said since the folks around here had started to trade at home and quit sending so much money to the mail-order houses he simply had to have it. You can have what I make on that wagon to get that new dress with that you've been wanting. Wish you'd buy it of Jones though for he always trades with me."

"Yes, sir, I figure I'm ahead a little more than the freight on that buggy, besides getting a better buggy than you got. I intended to send away for mine, too, like you did, but I saw Brown's advertisement telling the kind of a buggy he had and the price, and I concluded I'd look at it first. He's making better prices than the catalogue fellows, and he's paying the freight besides. I figure that I saved just about enough on that buggy to pay the doctor's bill for Molly's sickness, and then, besides, Brown ordered his hay of me, and he's paying a good price for it, too."

"Now, my dear, you may engage Miss Herman to give Princess music lessons for the wave of prosperity in the community has struck the minister, you know, and he's getting $1,000 a year. Said he'd have to have a piano to keep up with the procession. Guess I'll have to get a piano, too, for the boys and girls. Can't have the preacher's children ahead of mine."

"Yes, sir, I'm getting along fine since I started to advertise. Got a new automobile last week, and the missus has been talking about getting a piano. Guess I'll have to get one, too, for the boys and girls. Can't have the preacher's children ahead of mine."

"A 12-page paper this week, I see. Anything special doing?"

"Not at all. That's to be the regular size of the Record in the future. The increase in business warrants it. The campaign of advertising being conducted by the merchants forced me to increase the size or encroach upon my reading matter columns, and so I increased. Then, too, my subscription list is growing. People who never took the paper before say they want it now if for nothing more than to keep posted on the prices the merchants are quoting. Business in the Record office is booming all around. I have had to advertise for two more job printers, and have just ordered a new printing press. By the way, is that horse you offered me some time ago still on the market? If so you can bring him around. I want him for a birthday present for my wife."

TEN GOOD REASONS.

Read Them and Patronize the Merchants of This Town.

Here are ten good reasons for trading with your home business people, as given by an exchange.

Because: You examine your purchase and are assured of satisfaction before investing your money.

Because: Your home merchant is always ready and willing to make right any error or any defective article purchased of him.

Because: When you are sick or for any reason it is necessary for you to ask for credit, you can go to the local merchant. Could you ask it of a mail order house?

Because: If a merchant is willing to extend you credit you should give him the benefit of your cash trade.

Because: Your home merchant pays local taxes and exerts every effort to build and better your market, thus increasing both the value of city and country property.

Because: The mail order merchant does not lighten your taxes or in any way hold the value of your property.

Because: The mail order merchant does nothing for the benefit of markets or real estate values.

Because: If your town is good enough to live in it is good enough to spend money in.—Gov. Folk of Missouri.

Because: The best citizens in your community patronize home industry. Why not be one of the best citizens?

Because: If you give your home merchant an opportunity to compete, by bringing your order to him in the quantities you buy out of town, he will demonstrate that, quality considered, he will save you money.

Search for Old Cannon.

A tradition still survives in Luzerne county, Pa., that when Gen. John Sullivan marched through that region in 1779 on his expedition against the Indian confederacy of central New York, he buried some superfluous brass cannon along the Wilkes-Barre mountain. To search for these revolutionary relics a number of the best known citizens of Ashley have formed themselves into an historical society. One recent Sunday the members scoured the mountain in the vicinity of Laurel Run, but could find no relics except a few Indian arrow points.

AUTO RACED

Down Grade and Ran Into an Electric Car.

ONE MAN IS KILLED,

Another Probably Fatally Injured and a Third Badly Hurt—Accident in 200-Mile Endurance Run.

New York.—The 200-mile endurance automobile run under the auspices of the New York Motor club ended in the loss of one life and the serious, if not fatal, injury of two other persons about three miles east of Albany last night, when one of the automobiles crashed into an electric car.

Clarence McKenzie, of New York, president of the Standard Brake Co., was killed instantly.

W. H. Mosher, a bicycle policeman, of New York City, and W. J. Swan, of New Britain, Conn., chauffeur, are in a hospital. Mosher is badly injured. Swan is said not to be so seriously injured.

The car in the accident was among the leaders in the race. The scene of the collision was at Clinton Heights, a station on the Albany & Hudson third rail electric line system.

The main road crosses the tracks at this point and there is a steep incline in the road. The automobile was going down the hill and the electric car going up a steep grade. The machine was making good time when it crashed into the car. The occupants were thrown from the automobile, McKenzie being hurled over an electric cable suspended several feet above the ground. It is believed that death was instantaneous.

Mosher sustained fractures of the skull, jaw and hip and probably internal injuries. Swan sustained severe injuries about the head and body.

Eighteen of the machines which started from New York finished before 11 o'clock last night, the first arriving shortly after 6 o'clock and the rest coming in at intervals during the night.

A CRIMSON STORY.

Harry Orchard Testifies to Having Committed 18 Murders and that He Is a Bigamist.

Boise, Idaho. — Harry Orchard crowned his admission of grave crimes Thursday when, continuing his case against William D. Haywood, he made a confession of the murder of Frank Steunenberg by an infernal machine that directly opens the way for his own conviction and execution for the offense. He swore that the assassination of Steunenberg was first suggested by Haywood, was plotted by Haywood, Moyer, Pettibone and himself, was financed by Haywood and was executed by himself, after the failure of an attempt in which Jack Simpkins had participated.

Orchard lifted the total of his own murdered victims to 18, detailed the circumstances under which he tried to murder exGov. Peabody, Judge Goddard, Judge Gabbert, Gen. Sherman Bell, Dave Moffatt and Frank Hearne. Incidentally he confessed to a plan to kidnap the child of one of his former associates. Then under cross-examination by the defense Orchard confessed guilt of the social crimes of deserting his young child and wife in Ontario, fleeing to British Columbia with Hattie Simpson, the wife of another man, and committing bigamy by marrying a third woman at Cripple Creek.

The state began its corroboration of Orchard's crimson tale by producing the lead casing of the Peabody bomb. Orchard identified it.

WAS BLOWN OUT TO SEA.

A Man in an Airship Narrowly Escapes Death in the Ocean.

Boston, Mass.—The breaking down of his motor, which allowed the airship he was navigating to be blown seaward, almost resulted in the death of Lincoln Beachy, off Revere Beach, Thursday.

Beachy had made a seven-mile journey from Revere Beach to Boston, sailing high over the city and passing over the steeple of the Park Street church and the state house dome, finally landed on Boston Common, where thousands of persons were attracted by the airship.

On the return journey to Revere Beach the motor became disabled when the aeronaut was a mile off shore, over Boston harbor, and the airship was carried some distance seaward. Beachy managed to partially repair his engine so as to get back to the vicinity of Revere Beach. When several hundred feet off shore the airship settled rapidly and it looked as if Beachy would be thrown into the water and entangled beneath his airship. Men in rowboats and launches who hastened to his assistance seized the drag rope and were able to tow him and his apparatus ashore before he struck the water.

CARS TELESCOPED.

COLLISION ON THE WABASH RAILROAD AT A SIDING NEAR HICKORY, PA.

TWO MEN KILLED AND 11 PERSONS INJURED WHEN PASSENGER RAN INTO COAL TRAIN.

Washington, Pa.—Two men were killed and 11 injured in a wreck on the Wabash road one mile east of Hickory, near here, Friday, when the Toledo express, westbound, crashed into a coal train on a siding, telescoping the smoker and a Pullman car. The flagman of the coal train, who is said to be responsible for letting the passenger train in on the siding occupied by the coal train, disappeared immediately after the crash. The dead are:

Frank Blanco and Anthony Cchlume, miners, of Avella, who were in the smoker.

A relief train was made up and the injured taken to hospitals in Pittsburg.

The fireman and engineer of the passenger train jumped just before the crash. The former was but slightly injured, while the latter had his nose broken. The smoker that received the full force of the collision was almost filled with passengers. It was in this car the two men were killed. Mrs. A. G. Chambers, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., and Mrs. Hilda Steare, of Chicora, Pa., were the only passengers injured in the Pullman car. Both were bruised and are suffering from shock. Passengers in other cars suffered from shock and slight bruises.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

Unseasonable Weather Continues to Hinder Trade, Especially in the East and South.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Adverse weather has made the season another week late, both as to distribution of spring merchandise and progress of the crops. Transactions during the few days of seasonable weather thus far indicate that settled warm weather will bring out much business, but so much time has been lost that few merchants anticipate a normal volume in the aggregate, and large stocks will be carried over or sacrificed at bagain sales.

Wholesale trade in fall and winter goods is brisk, large duplicate purchases because of the cold spring having depleted stocks in the hands of retailers. Manufacturing plants operate at full capacity in more industries, cotton mills making remarkably favorable returns in view of the weather and cost of raw material. Dispatches from leading cities indicate that the business situation is much more satisfactory at points in the west than in the east or south.

Buying of steel products has increased, and the forward business in all forms of iron and steel is so large that no material change in the condition of this industry can be expected this year.

TO CURB THE TRUSTS.

A Conference Is Held at the White House—Harriman Is Immune from Prosecution.

Washington, D. C.—A notable conference on the subject of trust prosecutions was held at the White House last night. Those who participated were President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Root, Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, Secretary of the Interior Garfield, Secretary Taft, Attorney General Bonaparte, Inter-state Commerce Commissioners Knapp and Lane and Frank B. Kellogg, of Minnesota, special counsel for the government.

That E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, is immune from criminal prosecution as the result of his testimony before the inter-state commerce commission in New York recently; that the question of prosecution of bituminous coal carrying railroads should be left in the hands of the attorney general, and that prosecution of the anthracite coal roads will begin in Philadelphia probably next week, were conclusions reached at the conference.

Following the general conference Attorney General Bonaparte remained with the president to discuss the so-called harvester trust. It is thought not unlikely that the question of prosecution of that organization will be left in the attorney general's hands.

Will Sue Army Officers for $100,000.

Highland Falls, N. Y.—Lieut. Col. Charles G. Ayres Friday night declared that he would support his wife in the action she has instructed her attorney to institute against Superintendent Hugh Scott and other officers of the West Point military academy. Mrs. Ayres' attorney has been instructed to file damage suits aggregating $100,000 against Col. Scott, Lieut. Col. Robert L. Howse, commandant of cadets; Capt. Llewellyn W. Oliver, assistant instructor of tactics, and Lieut. Col. Stephen C. Mills, inspector general. Mrs. Ayres bases her allegations upon alleged discourtesies received at West Point which culminated in her being forbidden to enter the reservation.

A Fatal Collapse.

New York.—One man was killed, four others badly injured and may die, and five others cut and bruised at Mariner's Harbor, S. I., Friday when a scaffold on which the men were working gave way and hurled them to the ground.

Steamer Wrecked.

Halifax, N. S.—The steamer Bridgewater, bound from eastern Nova Scotian ports for Halifax, was wrecked at Port Deckerton, 100 miles east of this city, Friday. The passengers and crew were saved.

The Vanishing Trick.

Into the grocer's shop walked an ancient lady with a slow and halting tread and carrying on her arm a basket containing a large earthenware pot with a lid. Placing the basket on the counter, she made various purchases, which she put carefully in the pot, and had her bill made out.

"By the way," she said before paying this, "do you mind keeping this pot with the purchases in it until I come back and pay for them, as I have to buy other things some distance off, and it will be more convenient for me to leave the things here till later?"

This request was willingly acceded to, and, lifting the pot carefully out of the basket, the old dame placed it, with an effort, in a corner; then, placing her basket on her arm, left the shop. Hours went by, day ripened into evening, and evening gave way to night, but the old woman did not return. At last the proprietor thought of examining the earthenware pot to see if by any chance it had its owner's address upon it, and great was his astonishment, not untinged with dismay, to find that it possessed no bottom.—London Answers.

Witchcraft In the Nineteenth Century.

Most people believe that witchcraft among civilized people ended when the "Salem witch mania" ran its course and died out in the year 1692. It did as far as America is concerned, except among savages, but in other countries the belief in the superstition did not die until a much later date, even if it can be truly said to be dead now. In France an old beggar was tortured to death as late as 1807 on the charge of being one who "communed with evil spirits," and in Spain a witch was burned in 1808. In 1850 in France a man and his wife tortured a suspected witch to death, and nothing at all was done with them by the criminal courts on account of the lingering belief in sorcery. Four years later a witch was drowned in England, and in 1860 one was burned in Mexico. In 1874, 1879, 1880 and again in 1889 witches were publicly burned in Russia, and even as late as 1890 regular judicial trials of witches were had in Prussia, Poland and Austria-Hungary.

Hoped He Wouldn't Grow.

A well known member of parliament was addressing an agricultural meeting in the south of England and in the course of his remarks expressed the opinion that farmers do not sufficiently vary their crops and make a mistake in always sowing wheat.

One of the audience opposed to him in politics asked him what crops he would recommend.

"Everything in turn," he replied.

"Well," said his interlocutor, "if swedes don't come up, what then?"

"Sow mustard," said the M. P.

"And if mustard doesn't come up, what then?"

And so he went on through a whole list of crops until, the M. P.'s patience being exhausted, he put an end to his questioning amid roars of laughter by saying:

"Oh, sow yourself, and I hope you won't come up."

Circumstantial Evidence.

Chick Bruce was a famous Adirondack guide, who accompanied Grover Cleveland on one or two of his hunting trips in those mountains. Chick left Mr. Cleveland sitting on a log one morning while he went out to drive down a deer should he chance to find one. When he came back he saw his distinguished employer still sitting on the log, but with the muzzle of his gun pointing directly at the presidential chest.

"Here," shouted Chick, "quit that, dod gast ye! Suppose that gun had gone off and you had killed yourself. what would have happened to me? Dern ye, everybody knows I'm a Republican!"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Large Order.

The proprietor of a certain restaurant "leased" the reverse side of his bill of fare to a carriage manufacturer, who prints advertisements thereon. The other day a customer, in a great hurry, ran into the restaurant, sat at a table and was handed a bill wrong side up by the flurried waiter. The customer put on his pince-nez, curled his mustache with his left hand and shouted in a voice of thunder: "Bring me a fly, a landau, two victorias and a dogcart. Got any funeral cars?" The waiter fled.—London Graphic.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

HOUSLER.

Flossie Housler, aged 20 years and six days, after an illness of about a year, suffering with consumption, passed to her reward on June 6th, 1907. She leaves four sisters, three brothers and father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Housler. The funeral was held in the Wesleyan Methodist church, Cooks Run, Sunday at 2:30 p. m., the services being conducted by Rev. A. C. Dow. The services were largely attended, it being the largest funeral ever held in this place, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held by her neighbors and friends.

L. H. L

MURPHY.

Prophet Spangler.

Leo L. Spangler, who has styled himself for number of years as "the last of the prophets," has issued another of his remarkable bulletins, says a dispatch from York, Pa. This time he is more specific in his statements. He now asserts that the world will come to an end in nineteen months. He now warns all the people to beware and look out for the dissolution of the world.

He says there will be no more seasons, that summer and winter will be as one, and there will not be any way of telling one from the other. Snow in July need not be a surprise, and sleigh riding is likely to be one of the summer pasttimes. He adds:

"There will be more black spots to occur on the son's disk, and by the latter part of 1908 the sun will be entirely black. The earthquakes will shake all the principal cities of the nations. Great excursion wrecks will occur and there will be great distress in the land until the end shall come."

Sat on a Rattler.

Mrs. George W. Verner, Mrs. J. V. Quiggle and Miss Edmondson, of Williamsport, had a thrilling experience with rattlesnakes while trout fishing on Pine creek, Thursday; avers the Williamsport Sun. Mrs. Vernes and Miss Edmondson were fishing in the stream when Mrs. Quiggle, who had became tired decided to sit down along the bank and rest awhile. She did so and felt something move under her. Thinking it was a crooked stick which had become displaced, she tried to move it, but instead of a stick she found herself grasping the tail of a very much alive rattlesnake. She sereamed for the other two women and they at once came and the three dispatched the reptile by means of stones.

The snake was lying streched out with its head under a stone. Mrs. Quiggle is a large woman and her weight held the reptile powerless. It was owing to these two facts that she escaped being bitten. Knowing that a snake usually has its mate nearby Mrs. Vernes started out to hunt for the second one. About two rods up the stream her search came to an end. The second snake lay streched out, and it, too was soon dispatched. The first reptile had seventeen rattles and the second fifteen. Fearing that their stories would not be believed the women carried the snakes to Pine, to substantiate their claims.

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1907, by Story-Press Corporation.)

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"Hope I didn't hurt you, Jenks," said MacArdel, apologetically, when we had him securely pinioned. "I just want to have a little quiet talk with you, but I'm not quite ready yet."

We let the fellow up and seated him in a chair passing the hitching strap from the wagon about his waist for greater security.

"By the way, Jenks," said MacArdel, as we were performing this last thoughtful act. "Nobody can hear you if you shout, but don't do it, anyway, or I'll have to gag you. Mr. Ware and I have some matters to discuss and we don't want to be disturbed."

We sat and talked about everything under the sun except Carney-Croft and its affairs, while I marveled at MacArdel's actions, but was unable to question him as to his plans or objects in the presence of the conquered Jenks.

MacArdel consulted his watch with gradually increasing frequency, and, finally, when the hands pointed to ten minutes before 12, he said abruptly:

"Ware, you take this fellow down to the path where the ghosts come out and I'll go and get the widow. I've got her locked up in the house."

The behavior of Jenks was remarkable to witness, as MacArdel uttered these words for, although his capture and that of his accompilce effectually prevented the reappearance of the ghost, at least on this occasion, he could not have shown more evidences of genuine terror if he had expected to encounter an army of specters. After some difficulty I succeeded in getting him to rise, and, with his arms snugly bound behind his back, he shambled with trembling legs down under the trees where we were joined in another moment by MacArdel and Mrs. Bruce.

The two guilty ones did not look at each other, but stood in sullen defiance waiting for what might come next. MacArdel placed them side by side, and, as we faced them, he began:

"You two have been circulating ghost stories about this place all over the country. You've even been here yourselves at midnight, wrapped up in sheets and trying to scare people out of their wits and injure this property. You were here last night and when we shot at you we hit you, Jenks, and wounded your hand. You dropped the sheets and a lot of other things and then you came back and got them all after we had gone to bed. You can't deny it, Jenks, for we found them in your wagon this morning, while you were asleep. Now, there's more than this," continued MacArdel. "There has been some queer doings inside the house, too, and you've got some way of getting in and playing your tricks."

He stopped speaking and eyed them closely for a moment before going on. Then he resumed, slowly and impressively:

"But there's something even worse than all this to be explained, and we are going to find out about the whole matter if we have to keep you here all night. Several of the pieces of cloth in that bundle have been used for something else than making ghost clothes. You know what they've been used for and—"

"Oh, my God, help me!" screamed Jenks, and before I could reach him, he reeled and fell forward on his face. As I turned to his aid I saw the same pair of filmy figures glide slowly past us but with increasing speed as they neared the river, where, on the previous night, they suddenly vanished before our eyes.

The widow made no sound, but stood perfectly motionless with face like marble and eyes almost bursting from her head.

MacArdel stamped his foot impatiently and muttered:

"There's more in this than I thought. Help me get this fellow up, Ware, and we'll take 'em both back to the house."

CHAPTER XII.

A Second Note.

Half leading and half carrying the unfortunate Jenks and followed by Mrs. Bruce who walked as one in a dream, we returned to the house. Once on the veranda, MacArdel unbound the fellow's arms and, noticing bloodstains on his face and shirt front, examined him closely to see if he had sustained any severe injury in his helpless fall. Nothing more serious than a badly cut lip was discovered, and we took the pair into the library, where a light was burning dimly. Turning up the lamp so that he could see distinctly, MacArdel sent me for a basin of water and a towel and stitched up the wound with material from his pocket instrument case.

Jenks submitted to this procedure in a stupidly dazed condition and as soon as the little operation was completed and an improvised dressing applied, he again fell forward in a swoon.

"Get him a drink, Ware," said MacArdel. "There's whisky in my bag, you know."

Jenks coughed and sputtered over the stuff in a manner nowise complimentary to the quality of liquor affected by MacArdel, and then, bursting into a cold perspiration, he began to tremble violently and beg piteously to be allowed to go home; while Mrs. Bruce, with pale, ghastly face, preserved the silence that she had maintained from the first.

"You may both go on one condition," said MacArdel, sternly, "and on one condition only! You must swear that you will never reveal a word of this night's doings without the consent of Mr. Ware or myself."

"Swear nuthin'," muttered Jenks, feebly. "I'll have the law on ye fur this, ye varmint!"

Like a flash MacArdel grasped his arm in a vice-like grip and said coldly:

"You remember how I handled you before, Jenks? Well, you know I'm your master when it comes to a fight, and unless you do as I tell you and do it at once, back you go to the path where the ghosts are!"

"I hain't afeered of 'em ef you hain't," mumbled Jenks, with a half-hearted attempt at bravado. "I reckon they won't hurt nobody none."

His very manner showed that he was quaking in his shoes, and MacArdel was quick to note it and make the most of it.

"You won't have me with you, Jenks," he continued, impressively. "We'll tie you to a tree and leave you there alone, unless you do as I say. Do you understand?"

That Jenks understood there could be no doubt, for his terror was obvious as he hastened to exclaim:

"I'll swear, mister! I'll swear teh anything, ef ye'll only let us git aouten this place an' go home!"

"And on One Condition Only!"

There was a small Bible on the library table and MacArdel caused Jenks and the widow to place a hand upon it as they successively took upon themselves a solemn obligation to preserve absolute secrecy concerning the affair of the evening. This done, MacArdel addressed them briefly but impressively:

"Do not think for a moment," he said, "that I have changed my opinion as to your knowledge of the things that are going on here. I'll admit that there is more to it than I thought at first and that more people are mixed up in it than I had supposed. But that only makes it the easier for us, because, in affairs of this kind, there is danger in numbers, and, while I am convinced that you two are the ringleaders in the whole business, the more confederates you have the sooner will we be able to make one of them confess.

"You may go now, but mind you remember the oath you have taken tonight or it will go hard with you both. As long as you keep this thing to yourselves you won't get into trouble, but the moment you start any fuss about it you will hear from us in a way that will make your hair stand on end! And whatever you do, don't forget that I'm a doctor, and that I know, just as well as you do, what those old rags have been used for!"

With this significant remark, MacArdel opened the door of the room and we followed them out of the house and watched them as they clambered into the wagon and drove rapidly away.

When they were out of earshot I said abruptly:

"This is a pretty mess that you've made of things, Mac! Do you realize that these people can have us up for assault and duress, and I don't know how many other crimes into the bargain, and yet we're no wiser than we were before!"

"Oh, yes we are!" said MacArdel. "We know a lot of things that we never dreamed of at first, and if you hadn't been so busy with Jenks when he toppled over you'd have seen what I mean."

"Well," I returned, "they were both frightened nearly out of their wits by the spooks, and I don't believe they know any more about 'em than we do!"

"Nonsense!" cried MacArdel. "You did not watch them as closely as I did, that's all. I confess they were frightened, but each in a different way. Now, Jenks was scared almost to death, and you may take my word for it that his terror was genuine, and that he believed the things to be supernatural. But it wasn't so with the widow. She knew all about them, you may be sure, and when they came so close to us she was only afraid that we would capture them or shoot them or do something of that sort. Of course this Jenks knows about the bundle of cloths because he had them last night when you shot him in the hand, but I don't believe he has any idea of what they had been used for. I tell you, Ware, the widow is at the head of this whole job and Jenks is nothing but her tool."

"Well," I replied, "it may be as you say, but I wish we were out of it. You may be right in your deductions, but they've got a perfect case against us if they choose to take it into court, and, with the popular prejudice that exists around here against the Carneys, a jury of these farmers would give us the limit of the law. It isn't a matter of fine, either, Mac. It's a felony that we've been committing tonight, and that means a term in prison, I want you to understand!"

Closing up the house we retired to our room and, as we were making ready for the night, I said:

"Why didn't you make them sign some kind of a paper that would have exonerated us? It would have been just as easy as swearing them to it and it would be hard for them to overthrow it in court. I might have thought of it myself, I suppose, but as I have been following you blindly all the evening without any definite idea of what you've been driving at, my brain wasn't working as quickly as it should have been. I tell you, Mac, I wish we had some sort of documentary evidence to show that we wouldn't be clapped into jail within the next day or so."

"Little good it would do to you," said MacArdel, "if you treated it as carelessly as those things you have in your pocket. You'll lose 'em out in another minute."

I extracted from the side pocket of my coat, as it hung upon a chair, a folded paper which was on the point of falling to the floor, and as I did not remember having seen it before, I opened it and read with interest and amazement. On it was written in a bold flowing hand:

"If you persuade Miss Carney to remain away from Carney-Croft and leave the house closed as in the past, the ghosts will make no further appearance, and neither Jenks nor Mrs. Bruce will disclose the affairs of tonight. Otherwise BEWARE!"

I handed it without comment to MacArdel who read it attentively and then exclaimed in triumph:

"What did I tell you, Ware? It's just as I said. The widow knew what to expect when I locked her in the house and she wrote this note so as to have it ready in case she needed it. Then she watched her opportunity and slipped it into your pocket as she stood by your side. I told you I was on the right track, old man."

"Maybe you are, and maybe you're not," I grumbled, as I curled up in bed and reached to see if my pistol was handy before I closed my eyes.

Never See Her That Way.

With all her faults I love her still, but she is so seldom that way.

Women as Imitators of Men

By Rebecca Harding Davis

Womanity vs. Humanity—Vanity of Modern Woman Over Her Achievements — Business Not Her Highest Occupation—"To Keep House and Be a Joyful Mother of Children" a Woman's Birthright.

(Copyright by J. B. Bowles.)

(Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis has long been known as a talented writer of fiction. Among her many works may be mentioned "A Law Unto Herself," "John Andross," "Frances Waldeaux" and "Dr. Warrick's Daughters." Her home is in Philadelphia. She is the mother of Richard Harding Davis, the author.)

Surely we are all familiar by this time with the claims to admiration of the new woman; the beauty and energy and keen mother wit which, as Americans believe, set her apart from the women of other nations and make her unique, as was once the huntress Diana among the gods.

She never tires of counting over her recent successes, from the marvelous costumes that she wears to her achievements in biology, in cookery or in founding new religions. The woman of the last generation walked in a narrow path; in her life, as in a Chinese song, there were but three notes—love, marriage and motherhood.

But this queen of the present hour has a thousand parts to play. You never know where to find her. She may be driving a four-in-hand in Broadway or looking for the north pole in the arctic seas or nursing some poor beggar in the slums, or, most likely of all, she may be settling herself comfortably for life as duchess or princess in some old English or Italian family.

We all look on with pride, and wonder complacently what she will do next.

The chief difference between her and her grandmother—and it is a very curious difference—is that the older woman regarded herself simply as part of the human race. The man was its head, its spokesman. She thought of herself as his child, his wife or his mother.

The woman of to-day is not only his equal but his antagonist. She talks not of humanity but womanity.

Every village has its club of women who urge each other into new professions, work or studies which have hitherto been considered the business of men only.

Every newspaper has a woman's department in which the successes of the sex in wresting trades and handicrafts from their brothers and husbands are daily noted.

I saw to-day the announcement that a woman was now filling a place as brakeman on a western railway. This fact is told with a hysterical sob of triumph, as though when this energetic young person laid her hand on the brake she had dealt a fatal blow at the foe of her sex and had made for herself a long stride upward in the scale of being.

In our national exhibitions, too, there is always a woman's department where statues, pictures, soaps, confectionery, etc., made by our sex are exhibited apart to prove that women are as skillful with their fingers as men.

I confess I do not understand this belligerent attitude in the modern woman, nor her vanity. Is she not human, like the man? Has she not the same fingers, eyes and tongue? She is not a monkey nor a freak that her cleverness should be trumpeted and paraded as abnormal in the public eye.

A man when he invents a new plow or paints a picture does not shout out: "A man—a man has done this! Not a woman! See how superior the male of the race is to the female!"

But we American women of late years never weary of boasting of the doings of our sex, and especially on the ground that they are so much like the doings of men!

It is true that at the close of the civil war our women were forced to compete with men for work and wages in every part of the field of labor. They had to make a place for themselves then as wage-earners or starve. It was no wonder that they were aggressive and sharp during that time.

But why squabble and fight now? The whole field is open to them. All of the fences are down. There is not now, I believe, a single honest occupation by which a living can be earned which is not open to a capable, decent woman to try for it. Men give her a fair field and much favor. Whether she chooses to drive a garbage cart or write a historic novel, they invariably are kinder to her endeavors and applaud her more loudly than if she were a man.

Why, then, this incessant, defiant assertion of woman's achievements and possibilities?

This constant noisy boasting seems to be akin to the loud cackling in the barnyard of a hen over each new-laid egg, as if an egg never had been laid before.

Another mistake, it seems to me, is made by my energetic young sister when she thinks that her chief errand into life is the work which she does to keep herself alive. She sings such energetic paeans over her success as a doctor or china painter or saleswoman—she is naturally in her need of money so thankful to have work to do and so glad that she can do it—that she begins to think that when she was sent into the world, to work was to be her highest occupation.

It is not true. There is not a fiber in her body nor an impulse in her nature which does not show that the real primary business in life is to be a home-maker, the comrade of a man and the mother of his children.

God in His wisdom may have denied her that highest and best work, but whatever else she may do she knows in her heart that it is the highest and the best.

A "southern woman" the other day rated her sisters of the south sharply because they "took it for granted that no woman is a wage-earner except from necessity and that when the necessity is removed she would gladly return to her old vocation—that of the lily of the field."

And why not?

The vocation of the lily of the field is to be fair and sweet, to make one little place on God's earth brighter and fitter for His sight and to reproduce its kind to do the same work when it is dead.

The woman who makes her home a center of help and intelligence and high endeavor, who brings forth children and fits them in that home for their future life, has done enough. She does not need to earn a single dollar in any way to justify her right to live.

As for the woman who voluntarily gives up her birthright—"to keep house and be a joyful mother of children"—in order that she may busy herself with public work, she is precisely in the position of that mad English peer of whom we all read a few years ago, who turned his back on his birthright—castles, title and revenues—in order that he might tramp on the high road grinding a hand-organ for a dancing monkey.

She is choosing the meaner part in her ambition to exploit herself before the public. No club work is as honorable or helpful as a gentlewoman's management of her home and family; nothing that her talents enable her to give to the world—whether book or statue or lecture—will ever be as important or powerful an influence in it as a living child.

This is not a pleasant subject, but when we read that the births of children of native American parents have fallen off one-half in certain northern states in the last two decades, it surely is worth our consideration. As men go, the native American is a wholesome good bit of that human stuff which makes up humanity. The world seems to need him just now. If he is not to be born into it, I doubt whether the books or charitable work given to it by childless American women will fill his place.

There is one pleasant fact, however, which cheers and comforts us in all these doubts and dangers. That is, that the large majority of American women have kept their footing during all the struggles of their sex since the close of the civil war. They have earned money when it was necessary to do it, but they have not raised money-earning to the highest place among the achievements of life. They have been shrewd, amused listeners to the feminine wrangles in clubs and newspapers, but are themselves usually silent and unpublished. Occasionally they have exerted the power of dumb resistance with most salutary effect, as when for several decades they have silently refused to claim the right of suffrage.

They are best known by what they do not do. They prefer to live in homes, not in boarding houses and hotels. They are not childless mothers nor divorced wives. They find no higher code of truth to teach their little ones than that which Jesus brought to the world. They do not replace it by the sharp worldly wisdom of Confucius or the vague yearnings of Buddhism. They answer all arguments by the question: "Who has led man so far upward as Christ?" and go on quietly teaching their children the Sermon on the Mount.

You call them old-fashioned and commonplace, perhaps. But they are eminently sane. One of the strongest proofs of their sanity is that they are content to be women and not imitators of men and that they still keep in their lives that charm of modesty and aloofness which the noisy minority of our women have so foolishly thrown aside.

Sharp Practice.

Andre Autard, who makes John D. Rockefeller's wigs, is a plump and elegant Frenchman with thin black hair, a rich black mustache and black and sparkling eyes.

Autard has a shop in the best quarter of Paris. Here all the world goes to be shaved, ondulated, massaged. And here an American talked to the great hairdresser about the exorbitant duty that Mr. Rockefeller had to pay on his last wig.

"It was sharp practice," said Autard in the fluent English that he learned in London. "To compel Mr. Rockefeller to pay such a duty was hardly honest. Sharp practice it was—like the way I was treated in my apprenticeship. When I was learning barbering I applied for a post in London. The patron engaged me at a certain wage and at the end of our talk he said: 'Of course it is understood that you speak both French and English.'

"'Yes, sir,' I responded quickly, "and Dutch also.'

"'We have no dealings with Dutchmen here,' said he, 'therefore I will take one-third off that salary.'"

A WONDERFUL GAIN.

A Utah Pioneer Tells a Remarkable Story.

J. W. Browning, 1011 22d St., Ogden, Utah, a pioneer who crossed the plains in 1848, says: "Five years ago the doctors said I had diabetes. My kidneys were all out of order, I had to rise often at night, looked sallow, felt dull and listless and had lost 40 pounds. My back ached and I had spells of rheumatism and dizziness. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of these troubles and have kept me well for a year past. Though 75 years old, I am in good health."

Medicine of Bamboo Sap.

In India the sap of the female bamboo tree is used for medicinal purposes. "Tabasheer," or "banslochan," is sold in all Indian bazars, as it has been known from the earliest times as a medicinal agent. It is also known in Borneo, and was an article of commerce with early Arab traders of the east. Its properties are said to be strengthening, tonic and cooling. It has been analyzed and has been shown to consist almost entirely of silica, with traces of lime and potash. From its remarkable occurrence in the hollows of bamboos the eastern mind has long associated it with miraculous powers.

Shall We Allow Our Cattle to Be Slaughtered

in an effort to stamp out Bovine Tuberculosis? Thousands of our best Dairy Cows are being killed in the effort and yet the disease spreads. Recently a booklet issued to all readers free by The Mutual Mercantile Co., Cleveland, O., claims that a few cents worth of Rasawa procured at any Drug Store and fed to the cow will render her absolutely immune to the disease, and it is surely a sensible move in the right way if the claim is true. At any rate is it not worth while to get the booklet free from your druggists and read what they say? It is especially so when so many thousands of cases of Consumption in the human family are now easily traced direct to the Dairy as the cause.

Stolen Naps.

"How do you like that office boy I sent around?" asked the banker.

"Don't think much of him," replied the broker. "He isn't wide awake."

"But you told me the last office boy you engaged was too forward and you wanted one who was retiring."

"Yes, but this one is too retiring. Every time I slip out for a few hours I find that he retires on top of the big safe and snores until I return."

A Novelty in Outdoor Color Display Seen at Jamestown Exposition.

The latest thing in fireworks involves no fire at all—that is no fire that can be seen, for the most beautiful effects of color are obtained with electric lights and some clouds of steam. The current for the electric searchlights is secured from any convenient supply, and the colored screens are the same as used nightly in every theater, but the artificial clouds necessary as a background for the colored lights is interesting.

A good-sized portable boiler, on wheels, furnishes the steam which must be at about 75-pound pressure. The steam is conducted through iron pipes into frames of various shapes, made of pipes with numerous small openings. The escaping steam rises in a sheet producing a moving cloud effect, and when the colored lights are played from ten or more searchlights the result is a novel delight. Not only colored lights but portraits, landscapes, marine views and moving pictures can be thrown on the clouds of steam in combination with changing color schemes, says the Western Electrician. One slide which calls out special applause is the American flag in its red, white and blue, and when this is thrown on the steam, the waving effect is perfect and it is hard to believe one is not actually looking on a silk flag 50 feet in length.

Electric Sunburst.

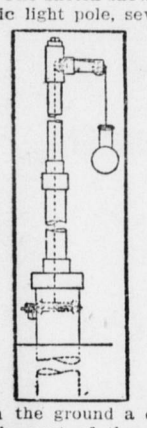
The flags of all nations will be displayed in this manner every night at the Jamestown exposition.

ELECTRIC LIGHT POLE.

It May Be Made from Pipes and Fittings.

The sketch shows a home-made electric light pole, several of which were made by a correspondent of the Practical Engineer, from old steam pipe and fittings. The top or upper pipe is 2½ inches in diameter and about 15 inches long; the middle length is three inches in diameter, 15 feet long; the bottom pipe is eight inches in diameter and ten feet long. This bottom pipe is sunk in the ground a distance of six feet. The rest of the construction can be understood by a glance at the sketch.



Puzzled Pat.

Pat acknowledged himself puzzled. "They call it an indecent electric light," said he, "but it do beat me how they make the hairpin burn in the bottle."

Water Compression.

Water is compressed 1/326100 of its volume for each pound of pressure.

RAYS OF LIGHT FOR WIRES.

Telephone Messages Transmitted Through Peculiar Medium.

It is now possible actually to reproduce a message from one point to another by means of a ray of light, reproducing at the end of the ray the tones of the voice spoken into the ray at the sending end.

Numerous experiments have been made, and it has been found possible to combine a microphone with a powerful electric searchlight in such a way that the powerful current operating the searchlight is made subject to small fluctuations. It is as if a series of ripples was sent along the continuous band of lightwaves sent out by the powerful arc light.

At the other end of the shaft of light is fixed the polished mirror as shown in the photograph, in the center of which is a selenium cell. The fluctuations of light are concentrated by the concave mirror on the cell, and the little diaphragm attached to the receiver is operated by the fluctuating currents, and sounds reach the ear just as they do in the case of the ordinary telephone.

It is just as though one had spoken along the beam of light from a lighthouse tower and the speech had been heard at the other end of the ray about ten miles away.

TO FROST INCANDESCENT LAMP.

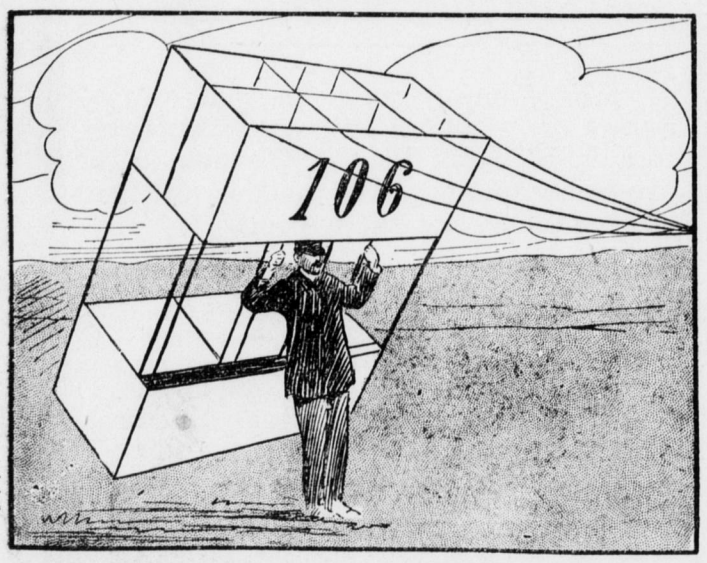
Piece of Emery Paper and Little Elbow Grease All That Is Necessary.

A small piece of good emery cloth is all the material necessary to frost an incandescent lamp quickly, but effectualy. Rub the cloth over the entire lamp with a circular motion. Rubbing up and down will not produce the best results. About 15 minutes' work will produce a very good frosting on an ordinary globe.

Telephone from Moving Train.

Telephone communication from a train running 35 miles an hour on a line out of Madison, Ind., was had with Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. The apparatus may prove to be sufficiently reliable to warrant the equipment of all trains. This would put the train crew in constant connection with the train dispatcher which would be a great advance in safety of operation.

Kites for Army "Wireless"



Portable wireless outfits are considered part of the necessary engineering equipment to-day in all European armies. Under ordinary conditions, the exigencies of actual warfare will not allow the use of the permanent mast stations, says the Technical World Magazine.

Balloons and kites are therefore called into use to raise the aerial wire. When the breeze is light the tailless kite known as the Malay or Eddy is used. When the wind is blowing at 30 or 40 miles an hour the box kite is employed.

The illustration shows a German scientist making an experiment in wireless telegraphy. The kite is considerably taller than the man who is supporting it preparatory to its flight. The long wires or "antennae" with which the machine is equipped are plainly visible. This is the method of equipment employed by Marconi for sending messages across the Atlantic. The greater the distance of the wires above the earth the further the distance the message may be sent.

FARM AND GARDEN

DURABLE GATE.

Hinges for Gate Which Permit It to Be Raised on Low End.

Any ordinary gate will answer the purpose. The improvement is in the hinges. These are made of an ordinary wagon tire. The upper one, which I have marked A, is made so it will pass entirely around the post and is bolted to the end of the gate, writes the correspondent of the Journal of Agriculture. The bottom one, B, is made with a shoulder which extends only half way around the post. It is somewhat like a letter "Y," only the open fork is made round so it will fit the post.

A number of holes bored through the top of a post, one under the other, through any one of which a bolt may be placed. This bolt, C, holds the upper hinge in place. By setting it up or down in the row of holes, the gate may be made to swing high or low, as desired. When there is a heavy snow, the bolt can be placed in the top hole, and the gate will swing over the drift. If it is desired to raise the gate so hogs and sheep can pass under while large animals are restrained, the bolt can be set any height desired to make the passageway under the gate large enough to permit ingress or egress of the smaller animals.

The drawing will explain the construction.

THE DUST MULCH.

It Prevents Evaporation of Moisture and Causes Roots to Strike Deeper.

A Matter of much importance, both as regards saving moisture and preventing root injuries, is the depth of surface tillage. Too shallow cultivation will not be effective in checking evaporation, still one must know that the soil should not be stirred so deep that the top roots are cut. If this is done the growth is at once checked, and the roots are forced lower in search of supplies. From two to three inches have been found the best depth for flat cultivation, where the ground has been thoroughly prepared. When a seed bed has been thoroughly fined, proper handling will bring the corn crop along, with the minimum amount of rainfall. The problem, says Indiana Farmer, is to maintain good capillary action between the lower water systems and the soil where the roots are growing. When the water moves upwards and strikes the dust blanket it is checked, and it must pass out through the plant, rather than by evaporation. It is a pretty nice problem, but the aim should be to make all water and fertilizing material pass through the roots of the growing plants, work for the dust mulch; don't dig down to the wet soil, so that with every cultivation you expose more soil to the sun.

MEDITATIONS.

Failure comes to the faint hearted.

Fear of being caught stands for conscience in some men.

Much of the fertility of American soils has been wasted by the men that have cultivated it.

No man should call himself a good farmer if his land has been growing less productive from year to year.

It is not safe to be governed by the results of a trial of one year on the farm, for frequently results are brought about by conditions which we know nothing about.

The most nutritious hay is made when grasses or clover are in bloom. A delay of one week in the cutting period will make a big difference in the actual feeding value of the crop.

With the prospect of a short hay crop, put away some sheaf oats, when harvest comes again. They make fine feed; in fact, if they are not put up before the straw becomes too ripe, there is nothing better.

Sheep Are Best Producers.

Prof. F. B. Mumford of the Missouri experiment station says that sheep produce more meat from a pound of grain than any other class of farm animals. In fact, a pound of mutton can be produced from about half as much grain as a pound of beef. Even Missouri's mostgage-lifting hog requires more grain to produce a pound of human food than the sheep. With the combination of corn and clover hay for feed, the dry shed for shelter, sheep will always give good account of themselves and respond readily to the care given them.

Save the Lambs and Pigs.

Save the lambs; save the pigs. The ewes and sows will need some green food at this time, or at least some bran and oil meal. If the bowels are kept open and appetites good there won't be much trouble with the youngsters when they arrive.

ALMOST FELT ENVY PANGS.

Great Cricketer's Simple Tribute to His Own Worth.

In 1885 there was a great celebration in London in honor of Dr. Samuel Johnson, and among those in attendance was the Australian "crack" cricketer, Bonner, then at the height of his fame.

As one of the guests, says the compiler of the recently published "Letters" of the late Dr. George Birkbeck Hill, Bonner's health was proposed. His response was noteworthy.

"After seeing the way in which Dr. Johnson's memory is revered," he said, with great simplicity, "I am not sure that I would not rather have been such a man than have gained my own greatest triumphs in cricket."—Youth's Companion.

SORES AS BIG AS PENNIES.

Whole Head and Neck Covered—Hair All Came Out—Cured in Three Weeks by Cuticura.

"After having the measles my whole head and neck were covered with scaly sores about as large as a penny. They were just as thick as they could be. My hair all came out. I let the trouble run along, taking the doctor's blood remedies and rubbing on salve, but it did not seem to get any better. It stayed that way for about six months; then I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about a week I noticed a big difference, and in three weeks it was well entirely and I have not had the trouble any more, and as this was seven years ago, I consider myself cured. Mrs. Henry Porter, Albion, Neb., Aug. 25, 1906."

A Sad Mistake.

In my father's native village lives Mr. S., a very deaf old man. During the summer months he lets his spare rooms to some of the many pleasure-seekers who frequent the place, says a Boston Herald writer, and one day last summer, while Mr. S. was in his garden, a young man of the village chanced by, and the following conversation took place:

"Good morning, Mr. S."

"Mawnin'."

"You've got your house full of boarders this summer."

Mr. S. was picking potato bugs off from his plants, but he managed to stop long enough to answer, "Yes."

"Some nice looking young ladies among them," continued the young man.

Mr. S. stood up and eyed the potatoes critically, then answered:

"Well, they'd ought to look purty good. I just picked two quarts of bugs off 'em."

Bill Nye's Long Wait.

Bill Nye when a young man once made an engagement with a lady friend of his to take her driving on a Sunday afternoon. The appointed day came, but at the livery stable all the horses were taken out save one old, shaky, exceedingly bony horse.

Mr. Nye hired the nag and drove to his friend's residence. The lady let him wait nearly an hour before she was ready, and then on viewing the disreputable outfit flatly refused to accompany Mr. Nye.

"Why," she exclaimed, sneeringly, "that horse may die of age any moment."

"Madame," Mr. Nye replied, "when I arrived that horse was a prancing young steed."—Harper's Weekly.

Hard to Realize.

"Mother," said a college student who had brought his chum home for the holidays, "permit me to present my friend, Mr. Specknoodle."

His mother, who was a little hard of hearing, placed her hand to her ear.

"I'm sorry, George, but I didn't quite catch your friend's name. You'll have to speak a little louder, I'm afraid."

"I say, mother," shouted George, "I want to present Mr. Specknoodle."

"I'm sorry, George, but Mr. —— What was the name again?"

"Mr. Specknoodle!" George fairly yelled.

The old lady shook her head sadly.

"I'm sorry, George, but I'm afraid it's no use. It sounds just like Specknoodle to me."—Everybody's Magazine.

CHILDREN SHOWED IT

Effect of Their Warm Drink in the Morning.

"A year ago I was a wreck from coffee drinking and was on the point of giving up my position in the school room because of nervousness.

"I was telling a friend about it and she said, 'We drink nothing at meal time but Postum Food Coffee, and it is such a comfort to have something we can enjoy drinking with the children.'

"I was astonished that she would allow the children to drink any kind of coffee, but she said Postum was the most healthful drink in the world for children as well as for older ones, and that the condition of both the children and adults showed that to be a fact.

"My first trial was a failure. The cook boiled it four or five minutes and it tasted so flat that I was in despair but determined to give it one more trial. This time we followed the directions and boiled it fifteen minutes after the boiling began. It was a decided success and I was completely won by its rich delicious flavour. In a short time I noticed a decided improvement in my condition and kept growing better and better month after month, until now I am perfectly healthy, and do my work in the school room with ease and pleasure. I would not return to the nerve-destroying regular coffee for any money."

MOTHERHOOD

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mr. Carter was thrown out of the wagon and the team ran down the township road as far as Squire Sullivan's hen yard where they fell on their sides after becoming entangled in the wire fence. In a short time B. J. Collins, W. R. Smith, Homer Ives and C. J. Miller were upon the scene and soon had the team on their feet and disentangled the wire from about them but C. J. Miller in trying to unbuckle a strap narrowly escaped being kicked in the leg, so near, in fact that his trouser leg was torn open at the knee. In about fifteen minute after this Mr. Carter came down the road and took charge of the team. Mr. Carter was hurt somewhat about the ribs and was attended by Dr. Beale, of Driftwood. The team was not injured much outside of a few cuts about the legs but the wagon was damaged a great deal, the entire being demolished.
